1. Introduction

IHS Markit is firmly committed to conducting business with integrity and in compliance with the letter and spirit of the law. Our commitment to conducting business with the highest level of ethics, standards and responsibility is reflected in our compliance policies and procedures, and the implementation of the Compliance Hotline (“the hotline”). A successful compliance program depends upon all of us being alert and committed to compliance.

2. General Policy

2.1 Purpose and scope

It is IHS Markit policy to comply with all applicable laws and regulations, including those obligations we have as a publicly-traded company, such as the Sarbanes-Oxley Act and the Dodd-Frank Act. This policy provides guidance related to the establishment and administration of a system that allows IHS Markit colleagues, officers, members of the Board of Directors, and other interested third parties (i.e., customers, vendors, contractors, etc.) to report known or suspected violations of the law, the Business Code of Conduct or company policy.

We all have an obligation to promptly speak up when we see others failing to act with integrity or violating our Code. This isn’t always easy or comfortable, but we expect you to help us maintain an ethical culture by reporting any concerns under the procedure outlined in this policy.

The Compliance Hotline provides colleagues and other individuals with a confidential and anonymous (where allowed by local law) reporting system to submit concerns and complaints regarding accounting, auditing and internal control matters, and violations of the Code, company policy and the law. Examples of the type of concerns or complaints that should be reported to the hotline can be found in Section 3.2.

For other workplace concerns, questions or grievances that do not rise to the level of a violation of law, the Business Code of Conduct or company policy, or that do not involve allegations of financial and accounting irregularities, colleagues should seek guidance from their direct manager or any of the resources listed in Section 3.1.

2.2 Managers’ responsibilities

We all have an obligation to ensure that colleagues are supported and heard when they raise concerns or complaints in good faith, even when they turn out to be mistaken. This is true regardless of whether colleagues use the hotline to report concerns or whether they simply raise concerns to their manager.

Managers in particular have a special obligation to ensure that they do not condone or permit illegal or unethical conduct, or fail to take appropriate action. Managers are expected to serve as ethical role models by exemplifying our company’s values at all times. As a manager, you must:

- Create a positive work environment where colleagues are comfortable raising questions and concerns

- Always act to stop violations of the Code or the law by those you supervise
- Never fail to report known or suspected violations of the Code or the law, including directing colleagues who raise concerns to report them to the Compliance Hotline when relevant
- Always act to prevent retaliatory or harassing behaviour against anyone who reports concerns in good faith

2.3 Good-faith reporting

The effectiveness of this policy and these procedures relies on your sound judgement. IHS Markit takes concerns of misconduct very seriously and expects that any individual who reports misconduct does so in good faith. Making a report in good faith means that you provide all the information you have regarding the issue and believe the report to be true. Bad-faith reporting or misuse of the reporting system is inappropriate (and a violation of this policy) and can be very damaging to IHS Markit and your fellow colleagues.

2.4 No retaliation

IHS Markit prohibits retaliation against anyone who, in good faith, reports known or suspected unethical or illegal misconduct, seeks advice, raises a concern or provides information in an internal or external investigation or legal proceeding pertaining to the company. Retaliation can include, but is not limited to, coercing, intimidating, threatening, interfering or discriminating against any person for the purpose of interfering with any protected right or because they have exercised any protected right or aided or encouraged another person to exercise any protected right. Allegations of retaliation will be investigated as appropriate.

2.5 Ownership and training

The Chief Compliance Officer (CCO) is responsible for the administration, oversight and training with regard to performance under this policy and procedure. The CCO may delegate certain tasks as necessary or appropriate in order to fulfil required duties, and will oversee any such delegation. The CCO, together with the General Counsel, will work in collaboration with other departments – such as Internal Audit and Human Resources – as necessary to ensure that reports and investigations are handled appropriately and effectively.

3. Where to Seek Help and Report Concerns

3.1 Reporting concerns or grievances about the workplace

If you need help or would like to voice a concern or complaint about an issue that does not rise to the level of a violation of law, the Code or company policies, your manager is the best person to speak to because he or she knows your department and your work situation. Managers at IHS Markit maintain an open-door policy.

If you do not feel comfortable speaking with your direct manager, you are encouraged to contact any of the following resources for assistance:

- Your local or regional Human Resources representative
- Your local or regional Legal representative
- The head of Internal Audit
- The Chief Compliance Officer
- The global head of Human Resources
- The General Counsel
- The CEO

3.2 Reporting known or suspected violations of law, the Code, company policy or financial reporting

You are encouraged to report allegations of misconduct or suspected violations of law, the Code and company policy to your direct manager or any of the resources listed in Section 3.1. However, IHS Markit understands that you may be apprehensive about reporting serious concerns or complaints.

The Compliance Hotline has been established to allow colleagues to report misconduct – including concerns regarding accounting, auditing, internal controls and financial reporting – on a confidential and anonymous basis, where allowed by local law.

Although the issues that may be reported to the Compliance Hotline vary by country because of country-specific laws, some common concerns that should be reported to the hotline include, but are not limited to:

- Accounting discrepancies, misrepresentations and omissions
- Violations of applicable securities laws
- Discrimination and harassment
- Fraud
- Embezzlement
- Bribery and kickbacks
- Corporate theft, vandalism and espionage
- Workplace substance abuse
- Cybersecurity violations

4. Hotline Reporting Procedure

4.1 Submitting a hotline report

The Compliance Hotline is hosted by EthicsPoint, an independent third-party provider. The hotline is an international telephone and web-based service that is available 24 hours a day, seven days per week. Translation services are available when calling the hotline.

You may submit a report to the hotline using any of the methods described below:

- Submitting a secure web form by visiting www.ihsmarkithotline.ethicspoint.com and selecting "File a Report"
- Toll-free calls by dialing 1-866-294-3538 in the United States and Canada; 0800-032-8483 in the United Kingdom; or by selecting the appropriate country telephone listed on the hotline website. Please note that international toll-free service telephone numbers are subject to change. If the number listed is not in service, please try an alternate listed number or dial the number provided at the EthicsPoint website.

You can also submit a report via email to CorporateCompliance@ihsmarkit.com.

However, please note that these emails will be received by the IHS Markit Corporate Compliance team, and not EthicsPoint, if anonymity is a concern.

4.2 Anonymity and confidentiality

When allowed by local law, reports may be made to the Compliance Hotline anonymously. However, all individuals making a report are encouraged to disclose their identity as doing so enables IHS Markit to investigate the issue more thoroughly. Similarly, while you are welcome to raise your concern confidentially, doing so may restrict the effectiveness of any investigation. Although IHS Markit cannot guarantee confidentiality of your concern, all reasonable efforts will be made to keep your identity confidential to the fullest extent allowed by law, consistent with the resolution of the issue.

4.3 Special procedure on reporting accounting, auditing or internal control matters

The Audit Committee of IHS Markit's Board of Directors has established a special process for reporting concerns relating to accounting, auditing or internal control matters. For any such concerns, you should follow the Compliance Hotline reporting procedure set forth in Section 4.1, but you must also include sufficient information and details to ensure appropriate handling and a thorough investigation of the matter.

Examples of the types of matters covered by this procedure include:

- Fraud or intentional error in the preparation, review or audit of IHS Markit's financial statements;
- Fraud or intentional error in the recording and maintenance of IHS Markit's financial books and records;
- Deficiencies or noncompliance with IHS Markit's internal controls;
- Attempts to mislead or improperly influence IHS Markit's independent external auditor in the course of the performance of their audit; or

- Material misrepresentations or omissions regarding the reporting of IHS Markit's business and financial condition, results of operations or cash flows, including prospective reports in any of IHS Markit's public disclosures.

The list above is not exclusive. You should use your best judgement or seek guidance from one of the resources listed in Section 3.1 to determine whether a particular matter gives rise to a concern relating to accounting, auditing or internal control matters.

All reports relating to accounting, auditing or internal control matters will be promptly reviewed and handled by the Chief Compliance Officer, General Counsel and Internal Audit, and escalated as appropriate.

5. Receipt of Reports and Investigations

5.1 General procedure

Upon receiving a report from the hotline, the relevant IHS Markit representative will acknowledge receipt of the matter via the hotline to the individual who raised the concern whenever possible. Your cooperation in discussing the concern(s) raised with the IHS Markit representative is critical to the proper handling and resolution of the matter.

When required by local law, the individuals named in a report will be notified that a report has been filed and will be given the right to access the information reported, and a right of correction where the information is not correct.

Depending on the results of the investigation, remedial action may include disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment. From the receipt of a report until the time that the matter is closed, oversight of any activity related to a report will be managed by the Chief Compliance Officer in close collaboration with Human Resources and Internal Audit.

5.2 Review and investigations

All concerns:

For all types of hotline reports (including accounting, auditing and internal control matters), an initial review and assessment will be made. If the concern requires further investigation, you may be asked to participate in additional meetings to provide further information and in some cases we may, in our discretion, appoint an external investigator or team of investigators. If deemed appropriate, IHS Markit senior management or board of directors may be consulted.

IHS Markit will aim to keep you informed of the progress of any investigation, the likely timescale and the outcome. However, sometimes the need for confidentiality may prevent the company from giving you specific details of either the investigation or the action taken. You should treat any information obtained as confidential.

Concerns relating to accounting, auditing or internal control matters:

Reports relating to accounting, auditing or internal control matters will be handled in the following manner. Reports will be reviewed under the direction and oversight of the General Counsel or such other persons as the General Counsel determines to be appropriate, who will also oversee any related investigation required. Internal Audit will be promptly consulted for review and investigation where appropriate.

The person(s) authorized to conduct an investigation related to accounting, auditing or internal control matters will report to the General Counsel and the Corporate Compliance and Internal Audit departments in a timely manner all findings of fact, conclusions and proposed recommendations for remedial actions, if any.

If any report relating to an accounting, auditing or internal control matter appears to be significant, the General Counsel may elect to discuss at any time any concerns raised with the Audit Committee and/or the Chair of the Audit Committee. Prompt and appropriate corrective action will be taken when and as warranted in the judgement of the General Counsel in consultation with the Audit Committee.

5.3 Report retention

Information reported via the Compliance Hotline will be retained as long as necessary to fulfil the purpose for which it was collected, including any related legal or disciplinary procedures. Report retention periods will conform to applicable record retention and data privacy laws.

6. Additional Resources

6.1 Seeking additional guidance

Questions about the hotline, this policy or its application, or any similar compliance questions and concerns should be directed to the Chief Compliance Officer or a member of the Corporate Compliance team at CorporateCompliance@lhsmarkit.com. In addition, colleagues should consult the Business Code of Conduct and supplemental company policies for additional information on the types of compliance concerns that should be reported and the rights and responsibilities of colleagues to report concerns.
