OLD REPUBLIC POLICIES
RELATIVE TO INVESTORS' & OTHER STAKEHOLDERS' INFORMATION REQUESTS

Update April 2018

---

We appreciate very much and welcome existing and future investors' as well as other stakeholders' informational interest in Old Republic's business. Recurring requests for meetings and interim updates, however, place a great burden on our senior management team to respond effectively given the concurrent and important demands of managing our business. Of necessity, we therefore limit ourselves to the following approach to information dissemination in order to obtain maximum value from limited time resources:

1. Quarterly and annual written earnings releases are first publicly made through PR Newswire and simultaneously posted on the ORI website.
2. The Company currently schedules a follow-up conference call to discuss its periodic financial results following publication of such results for the first six months and full year. This call is accessible live on the web or by telephone and a replay is available through the "Investors" page on Old Republic's website. A transcript is generally available within 48 hours of the conference call.
3. The same approach is followed relative to occasional news releases dealing with important unusual or non-recurring transactions or events.
4. Face-to-face meetings may be organized from time to time by independent financial analysts and are scheduled if they are attended by several invited guests who practice as professional financial analysts or portfolio managers. In these as well as any other meetings we maintain necessary confidentiality of non-public and proprietary information, and utmost fidelity to Regulation FD precepts.

5. Annual visits in our Chicago office and necessary telephonic updates with representatives of the three independent rating agencies currently commissioned to provide us with periodic rating reviews. These agencies are: A.M. Best, Moody's, and Standard & Poor's.
  6. Except for the independent rating agencies and insurance regulators, Old Republic does not hold investors meetings during "quiet periods" in the course of which quarterly financial reports are in process of completion. These quiet periods typically extend from the third week of the third month of each quarter to each quarter's month of each quarter to each quarter's earnings release date.
