

IRC § 6045B Reporting

Effective January 1, 2011 issuers of corporate stock must begin reporting corporate actions that affect stock basis, including but not limited to mergers; stock splits, stock dividends, recapitalizations and distributions in excess of cumulative earnings and profits. The following information is intended to meet the requirements of public disclosure pursuant to Treasury Regulation § 1.6045B-1(a)(3) and (b)(4) for Ball Corporation.

On April 26, 2017, Ball Corporation announced that its Board of Directors declared a two-for-one split of Ball Corporation's common stock, no par value, in the form of a 100% common stock dividend. Stockholders of record as of the close of business on May 8, 2017 received one additional share of common stock for each share then owned. The distribution date for the new shares was May 16, 2017.

Action: Ball Corporation completed a two-for-one share split of its common stock:

Record Date: May 8, 2017

Distribution Date (the date when stockholders received their stock dividend): May 16, 2017

Ex-Distribution Date (the date on which Ball Corporation shares started trading on NYSE at the new split-adjusted price): May 17, 2017

Tax Matters: Ball Corporation understands that according to Sections 305(a) and 307(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, as a general rule (1) the receipt of the stock split shares will not constitute gross income to you, (2) the adjusted tax basis in the original shares owned by you on the Record Date will be allocated proportionately among the stock split shares and those original shares held at the time of the split, and (3) the holding period for determining capital gain or loss with respect to the stock split shares will include the period during which those original shares were held. If you acquired your original shares on different dates or at different prices (i.e., in different “blocks”), the tax basis adjustment and holding period determinations generally are made on a block-by-block basis.

If you sell shares, this stock dividend must be considered in figuring the tax basis in the shares to determine your gain or loss for federal income tax purposes. For example, if prior to this stock split you owned 100 shares with a basis of $60 per share, one-half of the basis in each of those shares would be allocated to the corresponding new shares, resulting in a basis of $30 per share for each of the 200 shares owned after the stock split. The shareholder’s investment in Ball Corporation will remain the same until the stock price moves up or down.
